The Wanderers

Nov. 26 – Dec. 18, 2022
FROM THE CO-ARTISTIC DIRECTORS

Welcome to City Theatre’s second production of our 48th season!

As an organization, we hold a joyful collective responsibility to serve our audiences. The word audience itself implies a communal experience that is also singularly unique. As the artistic team selects content for our season, we aim to find stories that enlighten our understanding of cultures and identities that differ from our own. Our hope is that as we are educated and entertained, so are our audiences and eventually our communities.

Our plays this season reflect upon legacy, faith, love, family, and desires. Somehow Anna Ziegler has intricately placed these themes and more inside The Wanderers. She provides a glimpse into the costs of choosing our desires, our needs and ourselves over tradition. If her name sounds familiar that is because you are recalling Anna’s gripping play The Last Match which City Theatre presented in 2016. As one of America’s most sought-after storytellers, Anna’s The Wanderers will receive a well-deserved off-Broadway debut in 2023! But feel free to brag to others that you saw it at City Theatre first.

A year ago, as our team collectively read The Wanderers, we uniformly experienced the power of Anna’s words that could be felt from the page. In our industry, the written word is the catalyst for creation. Yet, as humans we know words have undue, long-lasting power. And as a society, we understand especially that words of hate travel at lightning speed with ripple effects which span generations. We cannot ignore that our city has experienced firsthand how anti-Semitism can easily morph into violence. While The Wanderers does not contain discrimination of this kind, it is important in this moment to share a Jewish story that has the potential to counteract these trying times by remembering that we are not defined as much by our tragedies as we are by our triumphs.

City Theatre hopes to create a space of anti-oppression, inclusivity and both physical and psychological safety. This work requires tolerance and understanding our differences through civility and sharing our stories. We extend deep gratitude to our community partners who have assisted us on this journey The University of Pittsburgh’s Jewish Studies Department, Dainy Bernstein, Nancy Zionts, and Bend the Arc. They have guided and supplemented this work on our stage with authenticity and heart. We hope you take time to explore these organizations and their services.

Once again, thank you for choosing City Theatre! We look forward to seeing you again in the new year!

Dramaturgical Context
by Clare Drobot

Anna Ziegler’s The Wanderers is a poetic exploration of two families living on opposite ends of the spectrum of Jewish experience. In the play, we meet a secular couple and a Hasidic husband and wife embarking on an arranged marriage. As Ziegler explains “The Wanderers takes on the notion of arranged marriage and questions whether the love that grows out of an arrangement is qualitatively different from other kinds of love.”

Characters Esther and Schmuli are members of the Satmar Jewish community in Williamsburg, Brooklyn. Satmar Jews are a sect of Hasidic Judaism, a revivalist movement that originated in Eastern Europe, in present day Ukraine, in the late 18th Century. Derived from the Hebrew word for pious, Hasidic practice centers around the following of a charismatic leader (known as a Rebbe or Tsaddik) and the concept of finding direct experience of the divine through ecstatic prayer, song, dance and other daily activities as opposed to through the study of liturgical texts. The Satmar sect’s roots can be traced to the small Hungarian town of Satmar (sometimes referred to as Satu Mare) and the early 19th Century teachings of Tsaddik Moses Teitelbaum. Four generations later, Rebbe Joel Teitelbaum, Moses’ descendant arrived in New York City in 1947 determined to carry on the Satmar legacy. Joel had survived internment in the Kolozsvár Ghetto and Bergen Belsen before being saved by a Jewish organized transport to Switzerland. He spent a short time in Palestine, but Teitelbaum was staunchly anti-Zionist and quickly went about rebuilding his congregation in New York. He was wildly successful, drawing other Hasidic followers already in the states to the sect. In the present day, the Satmars comprise one of the largest Hasidic groups in the world with large communities in New York, Israel and around the globe.

The Satmar community is tightknit and wary of the outside world. Daily life is informed by strict religious teachings that govern everything from worship to education, gender roles, and marriage. In many ways, the insular nature of Satmar life can be linked to the legacy of Holocaust; the community’s marked rejection of the secular world and any perceived assimilation is a protective measure against future persecution. All of this history is present from the very beginning of Esther and Schmuli’s marriage.

In Abe and Sophie we find a relationship on the opposite end of the gamut. Thiers is a marriage of choice and both spouses have a complex relationship to religion. However, the intricacies of their union are also shaped by a myriad of cultural influences. Slowly the play begins to find the parallels between these two starkly different approaches to family and legacy. Perhaps across the gulf of time and tradition, our understanding of love is universally informed by an elaborate patchwork of identity, culture, and personal experiences.
SARAH GOEKE (Julia) originally from Missouri, is an actor/writer living in NYC. She’s genuinely delighted to be back at City Theatre! JAMES McNEEL (Managing Director) joined City Theatre as its Managing Director in January 2015 and has overseen the organization through a period of extraordinary change and transformation, while becoming a trusted and recognized leader in the arts management field both locally and nationally. He came to Pittsburgh after four seasons in the same role at the Contemporary American Theater Festival in Shepherdstown, West Virginia, where he was integral in the development and production of 20 new plays (including 10 world premieres and four commissions). Previously, he served as Literature Specialist at the National Endowment for the Arts, focusing on grants to nonprofit presses, magazines, and literary organizations, as well as awards to individual poets, writers, and literary translators. While at the NEA he also worked on the development of such national initiatives as Operation Homecoming, Shakespeare in American Communities, Poetry Out Loud, and the National Book Festival. In 2005, James moved to New York City where he was General Manager and project consultant for the arts management firm, The Center for Creative Resources. At the Center, he worked with numerous individual artists and arts organization in all facets of institutional development and was a team leader in the feasibility study, opening, and first year management and operation of The Times Center, owned by The New York Times Company and designed by Renzo Piano. In addition, he was Director of Development and Marketing at the historic Cherry Lane Theatre, located in Greenwich Village. James holds a B.A. degree from Shepherd University and studied Arts Management in the Master of Arts program at American University. He currently serves on the boards and/or committees of the South Side Chamber of Commerce, National New Play Network (finance); Greater Pittsburgh Arts Council (advocacy); and the League of Resident Theaters (LORT), the largest association of its kind in the country. He chairs a consortium of over 25 different venues and organizations, organized by GPAC, that has met monthly in response to Covid-19.

A round of applause for City Theatre. And everyone in your audience.

Theater illuminates the human experience. It connects us to each other, brings us closer, and reminds us of the incredible heights we’re capable of reaching. So from all of us at Huntington, a big thank you to City Theatre for reminding us how brightly we all can shine.

CITY THEATRE’S MASSARO FAMILY PLAZA
In 2021, City Theatre honored Pittsburgh’s Massaro Family by naming the public space located in front of the new Philip Chosky Production Center after the family’s late patriarch and matriarch: Joseph, Jr. and Carol. City Theatre and the Massaro Family have a long-history, going back to 1990 when the family’s construction company served as general contractor for the renovation of our then new home on the South Side. Later, the Massaro Corporation served in the same capacity for the conversion of the old Walter Long Manufacturing Company property into our 6,000 square foot production center, which opened in 2020.

Joseph and Carol had four children (including David Massaro, who served as City Theatre’s board president from 2013-2015) and 15 grandchildren and great-grandchildren. City Theatre is proud to showcase this long-standing partnership with The Joseph & Carol Massaro Memorial Plaza. Photo credit: Kristi Jan Hoover

DONOR RECOGNITION

FUNDER SPOTLIGHT:
THE DONALD & SYLVIA ROBINSON FAMILY FOUNDATION

Donald Robinson (1925 - 2017)
Sylvia Robinson (1929 - 2018)

The lives and legacy of Donald and Sylvia Robinson continue on through their namesake foundation, The Donald & Sylvia Robinson Family Foundation. Now led by their children and grandchildren, the Foundation has recently made a significant multi-year grant to City Theatre, making it the lead funder behind the organization’s education programming: the Young Playwrights Contest and Young Playwrights Festival.

Married for 69 years, Sylvia and Donald shared a life-long interest in the arts, with Sylvia even appearing on stage in the City Theatre New Works Festival and Jewish Community productions, and the foundation supports a wide range of organizations in Pittsburgh as well as Israel.

Over the next five years, City Theatre will continue to expand and grow its reach and impact in the lives of middle and high school students throughout Western Pennsylvania due to this extraordinary gift of support. Later this spring, we look forward to a permanent recognition of The Donald and Sylvia Robinson Family Foundation as we re-name our Main Stage theatre stairwell in Sylvia’s honor.

LAND ACKNOWLEDGMENT

City Theatre would like to acknowledge that our buildings reside in Dionde:gà, the Seneca language name for the Pittsburgh region. We work and create art on the unceded, ancestral lands of many Indigenous peoples including the Seneca Nation, members of the Haudenosaunee (hoe-dee-no-SHOW-nee) Confederacy (also referred to by the French as the Iroquois Confederacy). The Confederacy was comprised of the Mohawks, Oneidas, Onondagas, Cayugas, and Senecas and formed to unite the five nations and create a peaceful means of decision making. The Seneca’s jurisdiction over the area also saw the region as home to the Lenape (also referred to as the Delaware), the Shawnee, and others.

As recently as the 1960s, one-third of the Seneca’s tribal lands were taken by the U.S. government to create the Kinzua Dam northeast of the city.

The region’s history also stretches back further to the prehistoric cultures the Adena people, who were followed by the Hopewell, then the Monongahela and Osage.

City Theatre also recognizes its participation in and benefit from the systemic exclusion of Black, Latinx, Asian, Middle Eastern and all People of Color. We specifically recognize and acknowledge the treatment of the enslaved Africans and their descendants in the Pittsburgh community. We honor them by committing to creating an anti-racist space for the creation and enjoyment of theater.

We are mindful that our work here is possible because the land and lives of people native to this place were stolen. Generation upon generation (past, present, and future) of indigenous people here and all over the world are respectful stewards of the earth and its resources. Through this acknowledgement, I invite you to join me in paying respect to the elders both past and present.

We encourage you to visit the Council of Three Rivers American Indian Center to learn more and support their work: http://www.cotraic.org/

THANK YOU, TONY FERRIERI, FOR YOUR 43 EXTRAORDINARY YEARS OF SERVICE AS OUR DIRECTOR OF PRODUCTION AND RESIDENT SCENIC DESIGNER.

ON BEHALF OF THE COUNTLESS COLLEAGUES, ARTISTS, AND AUDIENCES WHO HAVE BENEFITED FROM YOUR TALENT, EXCELLENCE, AND LEADERSHIP, CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR RETIREMENT!

—THE CITY THEATRE BOARD & STAFF
Julianne Avolio performs in An Untitled New Play by Justin Timberlake, created by Matt Schatz, which enjoyed its world premiere at City Theatre in a co-production with Pittsburgh CLO in 2021. This production, twice-delayed due to the pandemic, was a culmination of four years of development in partnership between two local legacy arts organizations which resulted in rave reviews and a national audience.

For 47 years, City Theatre has remained one of the most beloved, impactful, and dynamic cultural organizations in Pittsburgh. From its nationally-recognized programming of contemporary plays to its work in the schools and community, City Theatre continues to reinvent itself. The largest performing arts organization located outside of the Cultural District, City Theatre is notable for both the excellence of its artists and art as well as an audience and donor base inspired by thoughtful and thought-provoking new work.

So why give?

New plays exist without the safety net of tradition. New plays are risky by their nature, but essential for a vibrant, diverse, and ever-evolving art-form. During these challenging times, your support helps ensure City Theatre’s recovery from the pandemic AND is a critical investment in preserving the future of the theater field and its artists.
By walking through our doors, we invite you to join our community. You are welcome here.

Part of our mission is to challenge and engage a diverse audience.

Feel free to laugh. To cry. To react honestly.

This is live theater. Our artists are living and breathing right in front of you — they need your reactions, not your distractions.

Bring your full self, but please ensure your actions do not harm other audience members.

Please be an audience member that joins with others, that has compassion for the experiences of others.

We’re in the same space. At the same time. This Is community.

2020 taught us that community is a privilege.

2020 also reinforced that we need to do better. Historically, theater has a culture of exclusivity.

Part of our anti-racism work at City Theatre is to break down barriers that limit access to art.

We ask you to join us in this imperative work.

We invite you to get to know our core values and to read our organizational code of conduct.

We want to hold ourselves accountable. If you have a negative experience in our space, we want to know. There are multiple ways to call us in. You can:

• Speak to a house manager
• Or any employee present with a City Theatre name tag
• Email the staff EDIA committee at comment@citytheatrecompany.org

We’re here. We’re listening. Let’s build a better community together.
On Saturday, October 1, City Theatre hosted its annual New Play Circle Brunch celebrating its major donors and funders.

The event featured a special recognition ceremony which celebrated the naming of the Dr. Vernell Audrey Watson Lillie Theatre; the unveiling of a new mural by artist Marlama Adele Vassar (supported by the Allegheny Regional Asset District) located the back of the Chosky Production Center; the creation of the Sylvia M. Robinson New Play Stairway; and the presentation of the Robert M. Frankel Awards to City Theatre scenic artist Leah Blackwood and board member Nancy D. Washington.

Wheelchair accessible seating is available in both the Mainstage and Hamburg Studio Theatres.

Selected performances of each production feature open captioning, audio description, and pre-show introductory workshops for those who are hearing impaired, blind, or have low vision. In addition, select productions will include an American Sign Language Interpreted performance. Performance dates are available online or by contacting the Box Office.

Assistive listening devices are available. Please see the House Manager for details.

Programs are available in both Braille and large print. Please see the House Manager for details.

City Theatre is committed to providing an environment that is inclusive and welcoming to all patrons. Please identify any special seating needs to our Box Office staff when reserving your tickets in advance by calling 412.431.2489, or order online at CityTheatreCompany.org.

GROUP SALES
Save when you bring friends! Groups of 10 or more are eligible for significant discounts. In addition, we are happy to help you plan your event or party. For more information, contact Audrey at 412.431.4400 x227.

RUSH TICKETS
Persons under 30 years of age may reserve $20 advance tickets, excluding Friday 8pm and Saturday 5:30pm performances. For these excluded show times, $20 student tickets may be purchased at the Box Office beginning two hours prior to show time. Seniors age 62 and older may also take advantage of rush tickets, $24 each. All discounted/rush tickets are subject to availability.

TICKET VALUES
Tickets prices vary by date and demand. In addition, pay-what-you-want performances are offered for each production. Call the box office for dates.

PARKING
City Theatre provides safe, convenient parking for $10 via lot access at 1317 Bingham St, across from the theatre entrance. Parking is subject to availability. On-street parking meters are monitored until midnight on Friday and Saturday. Visit www.pittsburghparking.com for more information.

LATE SEATING POLICY
Our theatres are very intimate. Out of respect for both the actors and audience, late arrivals will be seated only at the discretion of house management. Consider arriving early to enjoy a beverage in the Gordon Lounge or to visit South Side’s many eclectic shops and restaurants.
